Antonella Linari and Diego De Gisi are involved in Italy in the project dealing with worksite supervisor and team leader and for this reason they assigned to follow in the constructevet project the experimentation of learning units in the training schools

They have shown from an organizational point of view the way in which they have gathered the interest of the individual training centers to participate in the experimentation of some of the learning units highlighted by the project.

A rich debate follows related on the outcomes of the project and some more information regarding the experimentation were given.
